When I press CTRL + V in the query window it only inserts the contents of the clipboard - I then need to press the ENTER key, which then pastes the contents of the query window into the grid. I'm aware that some databases support a CTRL + INSERT mode for pasting. Any ideas? A: I guess the problem is that you are using an unformatted text (or really - any text), so the Command Interpreter is trying to interpret the input. I haven't tested it on Oracle SQL Developer 4.2, but here's a test on SQL Plus: SQL> select * from tab; TAB ----- Mike David Dave SQL> select * from DUAL; DUAL ----- SQL> ctrl+V in SQL Plus -> paste SQL> The query 82157476af
